A fun and effective activity to promote the school library is to create bookmarks. A bookmark I designed for Saskatchewan Library Week consisted of an inspirational quotation on one side of the bookmark. The reverse side featured useful research websites, as well as information required to access the websites. Each bookmark was then numbered, beginning with the number 1000, laminated, cut out and distributed to the 1200 students.

Throughout the week, two different digits, 0 through 9, were randomly chosen. Any student or staff member with a winning digit on a bookmark was rewarded with a chocolate treat at the library.

The traffic in the library was phenomenal!! Since random bookmark draws continue to occur throughout the school year, the students covet their bookmarks not only for the website information and to mark their page in a textbook, but also as a possible snack winner.
